

Search for Smog Cures Must Be Given New Push

By VINCENT THOMAS
 Assemblyman, 46th District
 You would think that human troubles with smog are bad enough, but when it starts attacking our food supply and our wildlife resources, our search for solutions to the many problems created by smog must be stepped up sharply.

For many months now, our California Department of Agriculture has been studying the effects of air pollution on agricultural production, and has come up with some really disturbing information. At a recent meeting of the Assembly Transportation and Commerce Committee this information was reviewed and possible remedies were discussed. Present at the hearing were representatives of the Department, the University at Davis, the University at Riverside, grower organizations and other agricultural groups. Also there were spokesmen for agricultural aircraft services—"crop dusters"—to use the common term which does not indicate the full extent of their functions.

WHY IS THE Transportation and Commerce group concerning itself with smog and agriculture? The committee has a continuing responsibility over the spread and control in non-metropolitan areas of air pollution created by motor vehicles. In addition, smog can create problems of visibility and operational efficiency for crop dusters.

The committee was informed that serious losses have been caused by smog

New Traffic Sign Ordered

To increase traffic safety, stop signs will be posted on each side of Royal Boulevard at its intersection with 212th Street and on the south side of 212th Street at its intersection with the east service road of Normandie Avenue. The County Road Department will post the signs within 10 days.

"The regulations will provide improved safety for motorists and pedestrians, especially children attending Van Deene Avenue School," Supervisor Kenneth Hahn pointed out.

Sewer Work Will Close Area Street

A section of 220th Street between Vermont Avenue and Meyler Street will be temporarily closed to through traffic from today to Sept. 16, 1966.

Supervisor Kenneth Hahn explains the Los Angeles County Sanitation District has requested this street closure to facilitate and speed the construction of an interceptor trunk sewer.

He noted the contractor will provide access for local residents and will maintain adequate detour signs and barricades at all times under County Road Department supervision.

in agricultural areas close to Southern California and Bay Area population centers. Let's have been seriously affected. Other crops are being severely cut back by smog, produced blight. Citrus fruits have been stunted by smog with resultant lowering of quality. In the Bay Area, nursery stocks intended to replenish or enlarge orchards have been seriously affected. Other crops are being watched carefully for signs of damage.

fect of the tons of "garbage" which pollute our atmosphere around metropolitan centers may not be felt for some years. However, pollution is spreading faster and faster into our less populous areas, and now there are only a few places where some trace of it is not evident. Therefore, unless effective action can be taken quickly, the damage to agricultural production of all kinds will increase. The close connection between pollution by smog and aerial pollution by pesticides was touched upon at the committee hearing. There appears to be some ground for the theory that heavy smog concentrations may increase pesticide contamination under some circumstances.

riculture also is thinking that it might be better to burn empty containers of toxic pesticides, even though risking more air pollution, rather than merely discard them and thus increase a threat to children, livestock and wildlife.

No specific recommendations emerged from the hearing. It was evident from the testimony offered at the discussion of the many ramifications of air pollution as it relates to agriculture that much research still remains to be done.
